CHURCH'S 106TH ANNIVERSARY.

First Congregational Church of Bennington to Celebrate in December. Early in December the First Congregational church in Bennington township, which has the double distinction of being the first church built in the state of Vermont and the reputation of being the most beautiful example of colonial church architecture in northern New England, will celebrate its 106th anniversary.

The Bennington church is famous all over the country. It is located on the heights at the western side of the township overlooking Bennington village. The first church was organized in 1716, during the first week of December. This was before the state of Vermont had become a separate state, and while it was a part of New Hampshire.

In connection with its construction, there is an interesting legend. In the days when the Bennington folk decided that they must have a church there was but one book on church architecture in the whole then existing state district, and this was owned by an architect in Bennington. The local folk studied the book and devised the church after suggestions contained in it.

After the church was built it became famous throughout the district and soon other townships wanted to build and sent to Bennington to borrow the book. Bennington informed them they would have to come and do their studies in architecture on the spot as the book would be kept in the town.

From village and hamlet came committees of builders, carpenters, stone workers and window and interior finishers. They were loaned the book and met in the church to read and digest it. After their studies were done with, the committee used to assemble and discuss the plans for their own church, devising modifications of the design used in Bennington, in order to get original results.

This the church became the model for all Vermont's church buildings. Rev. Vincent Ravi Booth is the present pastor of the church.

HOUSES FOR SALE

FOR SALE—The E. A. Friebo house at 85 Keith avenue, corner Summer St. and Keith avenue. 1745

City farm of 65 acres. Not the kind usually offered for sale. Ideal in many respects; only a short walk to business, schools, churches, etc. Sidewalks practically to the farm street lights, water, sewer almost to the door. Are these advantages worth considering? Furnace heated house of eight rooms, including bath, with gas range. Cut about 50 tons of hay this season; fields absolutely free of stones; and soil is especially productive, pasture for about ten or twelve head; some wood. An opportunity is here offered for one to keep a dairy and retail, operate a truck garden; keep poultry, etc. with a market at the door for everything raised or produced on the farm. Is this an advantage? The possibility for development is not to be considered lightly; house has already been constructed on two sides of this property and no doubt if the land could have been purchased in individual lots, much of it would have been sold long ago. Circumstances now make a sale advisable and we are allowed to offer this desirable property at much less than the owner would have offered several years ago. If in the market for a farm home with the advantages of city schools, stores, markets, etc., you will purchase this. A delay of a day may mean that you are too late.
